

Prof. dr. Alexander Vlaar. PhD, MD, MBA is professor Intensive Care Medicine (H-index: 32, 4.300 citation, > 240 articles) and principal investigator in intensive care medicine. He has a translational research line on hemodynamic management in the critically ill. His research lines include pre-clinical and clinical studies on endothelial leakage and microcirculation during ECMO treatment. Furthermore his research group has also a strong AI section which was able to provide one of the first validations of an artificial intelligence algorithm for clinical use, the impact on intraoperative hypotension prediction and clinical decision-making, which was published in JAMA 2020.